DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 3/30/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Claims 10 and 21 have been cancelled by the applicant.

Applicant argues that Genty does not teach "establishing a VPN tunnel between said at least one client computer having said network address and said server-side system, where said VPN tunnel is established over said modem; receiving a new request to establish a new VPN session with different server-side system from a different a different client modem within the plurality of client computers coupled to the modem within the client-side system, where the request contains new login details for a new user of the different client computer." The examiner disagrees. Genty discloses more than one VPN session (figures 1 and 2) between different computers. Further, the applicant argues that Genty does not teach "two different client computers using the same modem." Again, the examiner disagrees. Note, the client computers establish VPS session/tunnel among them (paragraphs [0012], [0040], [0041], [0043], [0050]); therefore, said VPN session/tunnel is using the same modem for new sessions established by the same computer to a different set of computers. "A plurality of client computers coupled to a modem within a client-side" is totally and completely different than "a plurality of client computers coupled to only one modem within a client-side." Each computer has a modem in order to communicate. Therefore, this action is repeated and made final.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-5, 8, 9, 11-16, 19, 20, 22 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Genty et al (2002/0178361).

As per claims 1, 11, 13 and 22, Genty discloses:

- receiving a request to establish a VPN session with a server-side system from at least one client computer out of a plurality of client computers coupled to a modem within a client-side system, where said request contains login details for a user of said at least one client computer (figures 1 and 2, paragraphs [0003] and [0216]);
- determining a network address of said at least one client computer (abstract);
- authenticating said user based on said user login details (paragraphs (00031, (001 1), and [0012]); and
- establishing a VPN tunnel between said at least one client computer having said network address and said server-side system, where said

VPN tunnel is established over said modem (abstract, figures 1 and 2, paragraphs [0015]-[0018]);

- receiving a new request to establish a new VPN session with a different server-side system from a different client computer out of said plurality of client computers coupled to said modem within said client-side system, where said request contains new login details for a new user of said different client computer (paragraphs [0009], [0040]);
- determining a new network address of said different client computer (paragraph [0012]); authenticating said new user based on said new user login details (paragraph [0009]); and
- establishing a new VPN tunnel between said different client computer having said new network address and said new server-side system, where said VPN tunnel is established over said modem (paragraph [0047]).

As per claim 2, Genty discloses obtaining security details from a client (paragraph [0010]).

As per claims 3 and 14, Genty discloses a collection log to extract the network address of at least on computer (paragraph (00102).

As per claims 4 and 15, Genty discloses storing the network address (abstract).

As per claims 5 and 16, Genty discloses the authentication process (paragraphs [00032, (0011] and (0012)).

As per claims 8 and 19, Genty discloses ascertaining an Internet protocol address of the client (abstract).

As per claims 9 and 20, Genty discloses the use of different Protocol (paragraph [0019]).

As per claims, 11 and 22, Genty discloses

- As per claims 12 and 23, Genty discloses restricting the VPN tunnel aRer certain time (paragraphs [0141], [0142]).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Genty (2002/0178361).

As per claims 6 and 17, Genty teaches the use of a server (figures 1 and 2). Genty does not teach a Radius server. However, it would have been obvious to one skill in the art to substitute a server for another server in order to enhance the quality of the transmission and reduce the costs. Genty's server and the Radius server are considered functionally equivalent. In re Brown, 459 F. 2d 531, 535, 173 USPQ 685 (CCPA 1972) and In re Bond, 910 F. 2d 831, 15 USPQ2d 1566 (Fed. Cir. 1990).

Claims 7 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Genty et al (2002/0178361), further in view of Vandergeest et al (2002/0169988).

Genty teaches transmitting the authentication information to the server (paragraph [0003], [0011] and [0012]). Genty does not teach the retransmission of the information. However, Vandergeest teaches it in paragraph [0039]. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skill in the art to combine the aforementioned inventions in order to allow the user to digitally sign information, or decrypt information using private keys.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
